Prefatory.

HE importance and usefulness of such a publication as the DIRECTORY AND HANDBOOK OF WARE AND GILBERTVILLE are too apparent to call for apologies. The literature, or reference books, relating to the largest town in Hampshire County and a very important section of Central Massachusetts have been limited; indeed, with the exception of Hyde's Address, published in 1851, Col. E. H. Gilbert's recent work on the original land grants and early settlers, and a few fragmentary allusions to the town in a Gazetteer of Hampshire County published in 1887, the histories of Palmer and Hardwick, and one or two other similar works—all of them dealing almost exclusively with the past—there have been heretofore but two attempts to picture the town of recent date. The first Directory was published by R. S. Dillon & Co. of Albany, N. Y., in 1885, and in 1888 the same firm issued another edition. Neither of these directories contained more than an enumeration of the residents in the village and the business interests and brief mention of the churches, societies and industries.

The Columbian Edition of the present Handbook and Directory contains some facts and ideas borrowed from its predecessors, but in the main it is built on original lines. First of all it aims to be accurate and thorough in its scope, making all due allowances incident to so great an undertaking and the changes which are inevitable from the canvass or "field work" to the final completion of the book.

The publisher has taken extraordinary pains in the spellings of names and with the historical data and the two maps which accompany the work. In the former he was materially assisted by Mr. Louis F. Gareau, and the maps are faithful reproductions of the careful work of W. C. Eaton, Esq. It may also be said of the latter that they are the first and only road and street maps of the town ever published.

The publisher is also indebted to Mr. A. F. Richardson for assistance in designating the legal voters as they appeared on the last official list; to the corporations for their statistics compiled to July; and to the business men generally whose liberality has made it possible to publish such a complete and creditable work.

Much of the labor of preparation and compilation was done under great difficulties, owing to the lack of street names, street numbers and some system of designating the roads. The town should officially number its houses and building lots, name or number its roads, put up street signs at every corner, revise its guide-board service and leave nothing arbitrary as to locations.

So the Columbian Edition goes forth, with its praiseworthy features and its faults, to tell the Story of Today to all who peruse its pages.

The Town in General.

GLANCE at a map of the State of Massachusetts will show the town of Ware located in the southeastern corner of Hampshire county, at its junction with Hampden and Worcester counties, the three forming large and important sub-divisions of the commonwealth. It will also be noticed that the town is near the geographical center of the state and is surrounded by a large territory which is naturally tributary to its interests. Two important railroad systems, the Central Massachusetts division of the Boston and Maine, from Boston to Northampton, and the Ware River branch of the Boston and Albany, running from Palmer to Winchendon, both having important connections, feed the town with trade from north and south and east and west, affording good shipping facilities for its manufactured goods and direct and cheap means for supplying its wants from the largest markets and for general communication with the rest of the world. The town is the trading center of about 20,000 people, including its own population of about 8000, and is the most thrifty and progressive settlement between Worcester and the Connecticut valley and the Fitchburg railroad and the Connecticut line. Its large mills are hives of industry, its stores are numerous and carry large stocks, and it possesses all the elements of a future city. It has churches of nearly every creed, and schools, public library, newspapers, waterworks, sewer system, fire department, public buildings, electric lights, sidewalks, and numerous other conveniences for business and social comfort, and what it lacks is fast being supplied. Its growth the past five or six years has been rapid and substantial and there is a steady gain in all directions from year to year.

The area of the town is about 17,000 acres, bounded north by Enfield and Hardwick, east by New Braintree, West Brookfield and Warren, south by Palmer, and west by Belchertown. It is about 6 1-2 miles east and west and 4 1-2 north and south. Its surface is generally rough and broken, three ranges of hills traversing it from north to south. Except in the valleys there is very little productive land, and it is to manufacturing rather than to agriculture that the town is indebted for its growth. The Ware river, its principal stream, enters the town at the northeast corner and flows southwesterly until it enters the Chicopee. This river furnishes the waterpower for the large cotton and woolen mills which have built up Ware Village. Swift river forms the western boundary and furnishes power for the paper mill at West Ware. The other streams are Muddy, Flat and Beaver brooks, flowing southerly into the Ware river, and there are two or three ponds large enough to be called lakes.

The original Indian name of the locality or river is Nenameseck, but the early settlers, being more practical than poetic, adopted the name Wear, presumably from the fact that in the river at this point a considerable salmon industry was carried on by means of weirs or wears. The spelling was afterwards changed to Ware. The territory was early known as "Brookfield Pastures." A large portion of the present township was a part of the "Equivalent Lands," mentioned in the histories of Springfield and Belchertown, and covered nearly the whole of the western portion of the town. It took the name of "Read Manor" from John Read of Boston, its purchaser. The southern part of the town east of Read Manor was a part of the "Elbows" grant. Five hundred acres where the village now is was granted Richard Hollingsworth of Salem in 1673. The northeastern part of the town was granted to settlers in 1733. These several grants, therefore, make up the town's present territory, and they were located as follows: The Read Manor in 1713; the Hollingsworth grant, 1715; the Elbows tract, 1732; the northeastern grant, 1733. Capt. Jabez Olmstead was the first settler (1729) on the Hollingsworth grant, where he built a grist and saw mill at the falls. In 1813 these mills and 400 acres of the Olmstead tract, comprising the whole village, were sold to Alpheus Demond for $4,500. He rebuilt the dam, started two carding machines, and was therefore the first manufacturer in Ware. The territory was incorporated as a precinct in 1742, and as a town Nov. 25, 1761; and in 1775 it took permanent standing under the then forming constitution. In 1742 there were 33 families, in 1776 there were 773 persons, and in the last 15 years the town has nearly if not quite doubled its population.

Such, in brief, is a general outline of the town of Ware. The details of its business, social, religious, educational and municipal life, as it is at present, with much other valuable information for ready reference, will be found in the pages that follow, under appropriate headings. In view of a probable future revision, should the demand seem sufficient to meet the expense, the publisher would be grateful for any suggestions or corrections at any time.

Two blows at noon is to test alarm, and after alarm signifies that fire is out or under control. Ten blows is a general alarm and calls out the entire department. Two blows repeated four times before 9 a. m. signify there will be no school in the forenoon; before 2 p. m., no school in the afternoon. Location of strikers, Unitarian and Congregational churches and North street hose house.

DIRECTIONS: Go to the box nearest the fire, open the door, pull the hook all the way down once only, and let go. Wait a full minute for the sound of the bells. If you hear no sound, pull again as before, and the third time, if necessary; if you fail, go to the nearest box and do the same. Do not pull a box if the small bell in the box is striking, or the bells on the churches, as in that case a box is already running, and to pull a seconp one would confuse the firemen.

ABBREVIATIONS: Adv, advertisement; av, avenue; agt, agent; b, boards; blk., block; B. T., Babcock Tavern; c, corner; ct, court; do, ditto; emp, employe; G. C., Gibbs Crossing; h, house; junc, junction; lab, laborer; mfr, manufacturer; n, near; opp, opposite; O. T., old turnpike; prop, proprietor; P. O., postoffice; r, rear; rd, road; rms, rooms; sq, square; W. Ctr, Ware Center; W. W., West Ware; *, legal voter.

The word street is always omitted after name of street. The prefix Miss is understood. Names enclosed in parentheses are for firms or deceased husbands, except where post-office addresses are given. The different spellings of names often places those of the same sound far apart, as Carroll, Caryl; Riley, Reilly; Healey, Haley; also the omission of O', Mc, etc., places similar names in different alphabetical classifications. Great care has been taken to preserve the original spellings of French names.

And any person convicted under the provisions of this section shall be liable to pay a fine not exceeding five dollars for each offense. But this by-law shall not affect the right to use the lands within the limits of the highway adjoining his or her deeded property.

SEC. 6 No person shall cut down, remove, mutilate or otherwise injure or destroy any fruit, shade or other ornamental tree growing in any street or park, common grounds or cemetery in this town, or shall deface, disfigure, mutilate, remove or destroy the fence or enclosure thereof without the permission of the owner or proprietor thereof in writing first had and obtained; and no person shall so fasten any horse or other animal to any tree as aforesaid as to endanger the same being injured, defaced or destroyed.

SEC. 7. No person shall behave himself in a rude or disorderly manner, or use any indecent, profane or insulting language in any of the public streets or other public places in the town, or near any dwelling house therein, or be or remain upon any sidewalk or near any doorstep, portico or other projection from any such building to the annoyance of other persons.
